The McGibney Family.

Tonight the famous McGibney family will give one of their peculiar entertainments. Mrs. McGibney is the proud mother of twelve beautiful children, all of whom are musicians. A little tot four years old leads the orchestra, waving her baton like an old professional. It is an entertainment that no one can afford to miss.

—From several scores of kindly mention from our coast contemporaries the following is reproduced as it is short and does not shock our modesty as badly as some of the others. It comes from the Bee.

In opening a new volume, the Carson APPEAL gives notice that there are "lots more to come." The APPEAL should never die. It is one of the brightest journals on the coast.

And the Bee might have added and "one of the best advertising mediums."

—In another column we publish the telegraphic accounts of the meeting of Cleveland and Sullivan. The meeting was of course worked up by Pat Sheedy, Sullivan's agent, to advertise his principal.

The President ought to have more sense than to be trapped into making an advertising agency of his office, for the benefit of a pugilist. Sullivan is a big man in his place, but his place is not in the White House, pawing over the President.

—Artesian wells are successful in Lake county, and may prove equally satisfactory in most other portions of the Coast Range. Water is becoming more and more in demand as an aid to the farmer and fruit-grower, and artesian wells are multiplying wherever there is a prospect of success.—Bee. In time the Nevada Silurians will go down and artesian wells will make the State prosperous.

LOST MEN.

Information Wanted of Various People.

Some weeks ago an item was printed in the APPEAL about a man being lost in a bale of hay. The item was a pure invention; the closing paragraph was written in such a way that we supposed any sane man would look upon the whole thing as an attempt on the part of the APPEAL to outdo its imaginative contemporaries.

The item has been extensively copied in the East, and letters come in every day or so from someone who has lost somebody by the name of Anderson. The following letter is published, so that if anyone knows of the whereabouts of K. Allison he can communicate with him:

NEW YORK, March 28, 1887.

To the Publisher of the Carson Appeal: DEAR SIR:—In reading the New York World on Sunday, March 27, I find an article from your paper about a young man by the name of Anderson who was found in a bale of hay. Now, dear sir, if you can find out a little more about this young man I would be very thankful to you, as I had a brother who left New York about six years ago. The last I heard of him was two years ago, from Silverton, Cal., and he went there by the name of K. Allison. If you will write to the place where he was working and examine the things which he left, if he left any at all, perhaps you will find some clue about him.

His description is: Age 29, tall and slim, long nose and face; a Hebrew by birth. If you can furnish me with some information about him you will greatly favor me, and should there be any cost to do it I will return it to you. Hoping that you will attend to it, I appeal to you for my old parents, as they are very anxious to find out about him. Yours most truly,

THOS. ADLSON.

34 Bond street, New York.
 P. S. He might have left a picture there.

For the sake of assisting those who have lost relatives, the APPEAL publishes the following letters received by the Postmaster of this city:

FRIENDSHIP, Wisconsin March 24.

To the Postmaster, Carson City, Nevada: DEAR SIR:—I desire information of one, John Marble, who some fifteen years ago was living at Carson City, and when last heard from had just finished a church that was to be dedicated that day. If you can give me information please hand the following ad to the publisher of the nearest paper and request in my name that he publish it and oblige Yours truly,

N. J. MARBLE.

LEBO, Kans. March 8.

To the Postmaster at Carson City, Nev: DEAR SIR:—I had a brother that done business in your city some years ago, by the name of Daniel C. Dennis, and I have failed for several years to get any word from him. If you can give me any clue to his whereabouts you would greatly oblige a brother. If you cannot, please refer it to some of your old settlers.

Yery Respectfully,

JOHN B. DENNIS.

SOUTH PARIS, ME., Jan. 3.

DEAR SIR:—In March, 1856, I reached San Francisco, from this State. With me was a young man by the name of Moses Woodman. He was then perhaps 20 years of age, making him now about 50. I wish to communicate with him. The last I heard of him was in 1863, on a small stock ranch near Carson City. Previous to that date he had said he thought of going down to Mexico; it is possible he may have gone.

Can you possibly give me any information concerning him? If you can locate him please forward this letter, or communicate in some way my name and address, and you will greatly oblige.

Please let me hear from you anyway.

Yours truly,

O. N. BRADBURY,

Formerly of Springfield, Me.
 Can anyone reading this give any information on the whereabouts of party inquired for?

SULLIVAN AND CLEVE.

The President Invited to Have a "Little Go" at the Pugilist.

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Among the visitors at the White House yesterday was John L. Sullivan, who called to pay his respects to the President. Sullivan and his manager, Pat Sheedy, were driven from their hotel in an open coupe to the White House, arriving there about 1:15 when the reception room was nearly empty.

Sheedy said: "Mr. President, I am pleased to be able to introduce to you 'John L. Sullivan of Boston' the champion pugilist of the world. He comes to pay his respects as one champion to another."

Sullivan advanced and took the President's hand.

"I am glad to meet you Mr. Sullivan," the President said. "You are not as large a man as I expected to see."

The President however, showed signs of winching when John gave him a grip.

"Mr. President," Sullivan responded, "you are looking a great deal better than I expected to find you, judging from what I have seen in the papers." Sullivan then gave the President's right arm a squeeze and then added: "You are a little soft though, and need half a dozen Turkish baths to put you in condition."

The President then doubled his biceps and asked Sullivan to feel his muscle. Sullivan did so with a patronizing air, but remarked deprecatingly:

"I am afraid you could hardly stay four rounds."

Sullivan then showed the President an improvement on his "guard" and remarked that he thought the President should reduce his flesh.

"You ought to have a little go with me every morning for a month or so. That would put you in right condition to handle these fellows who travel up here every day to bother you."

Before taking his leave the champion extended an invitation to the President to witness his exhibition in the evening. "Get off and come over," said he, "I will be glad to see you."

Carson Crocodiles.

There are two live crocodiles now at Oliver's ranch. They were presented by Bud Bliss to Frank Oliver. Bliss brought them from New Orleans. They are now about ten inches long, perfect crocodiles in miniature, and will be when full grown from ten to twelve feet long. They are now living in a pond and put most of their time in basking in the sun or burrowing in the mud. They are a dull brown with light bellies, and yellow splashes on their backs. Everybody who calls regard them as objects of rare interest, they being the first 'diles ever brought to Nevada.

The flume boys say that in a few months they will be able to pick up a stick of timber and lug it away. They are fed on meat and as yet have not shown any signs of an appetite of the tender piccaninies of their native wilds.

Another Fine Well.

Messrs. McLoughlin & Hawkins have just finished a well for A. J. Chalmers, of the firm of Bence & Chalmers. The boring was done in Chalmers' yard in the Northern part of town, and at a depth of 130 feet a fine flow was struck, which through a three-inch pipe now discharges 15,806 gallons every twenty-four hours.

The well when struck flowed but five gallons a minute, but when screened out by the steam process resulted in a heavy flow. The water is cold, and pure as crystal, and perfectly free from mineral impregnations.

Mr. Chalmers was utterly astounded at the extent of his flow, and is wondering how he will dispose of such a quantity of water.

Easter Sunday.

If you want something nice for your children on Easter Sunday go to Joe Platt's and fit them out in fine style with a fine suit of clothes and a new hat. At the same time don't forget the Easter egg.

A New Kindergarten.

Miss Ella Edwards will start a kindergarten school very shortly in this city. Mrs. Edwards will conduct her school under the Froebel system, which is the latest kink in Kindergarten teaching.

Death of Miss Grace Dowdell.

Yesterday the sad intelligence came from Reno that Miss Grace Dowdell for a long time a favorite teacher at the public schools, had at last succumbed to a lingering illness and died at the residence of Mr. Beck.

Miss Dowdell spent many years in this city as a teacher in the schools and her lovable disposition, her modest demeanor and gentle characteristics made her a favorite in all circles. She came to Nevada almost friendless and alone, as she had no relatives living except a sister. Bishop Whitaker became very much attached to her and she was educated in his school for girls at Reno. He regarded her as almost a daughter, for many years. There was a feeling of genuine and wide spread regret among the school children of Carson when her death was announced.

All the scholars who had attended her department had a high feeling of regard for her. She died of Bright's disease of the kidneys and there is universal regret that she should have been cut down in her youth and usefulness, just as the hope and promises of life appeared before her.

The Reason Why.

There was a young Miss named O'Donahue.

Whose lover said, Dear how I honour.

You charming coquette,
 You delightful brunette.

Indeed I am not making fun of you.
 The reason that the young lady attracted so much attention from her lover, was that she purchased her dry goods of Hofer Bros.
